Identification of Intimate Partner Violence

Impacts of Intimate Partner Violence on Victims

1. Low Self-esteem and Lack of Self-confidence

Under the batterer's repeated verbal abuse and blaming, the victim may gradually accept the negative appraisal and the belief that he / she has to rely on the batterer to survive. With time, self-esteem and self-confidence of the victim would be eroded.

2. Self-blaming and Guilt Feelings

The victim may take the blame by the batterer or others that he / she is responsible for initiating the violence of the batterer and failing to avoid the conflict by doing better or keeping silence. Besides, if the problem lingers, he / she may also develop a strong feeling of guilt for tolerating the situation and not leaving the abusive environment.

3. Mixed Feelings of Love and Hate

Most victims have mixed feelings of love and hate towards the abusive partner. In the abusive cycle, the batterer may also express their regret and promise to behave after each abusive act which will further confuse the victims who tend to rationalize their forgiving the batterers time after time.

4. Isolation

Social isolation by prohibiting / restricting the victim from relating with others and financial deprivation by not allowing him / her to work are common forms of social and financial control by the batterer on the victim. It results in making the victim totally dependent on and under the control of the abusive partner.

5. Difficulty in Parenting

Parenting capability of the victim would likely be affected by the possible impacts of intimate partner violence, such as social isolation, limited resources, low self-esteem and lack of self-confidence. The victim would also have difficulty to gain the respect from the children and to build up a normal parent-child relationship if the batterer keeps portraying the victim as an unfit and powerless parent, and as the cause of children's problems and family conflict. Besides, frustration or the chance of being trapped in the competition for the children's loyalty may also lead to parenting difficulty.

6. Traditional Gender-role Concept

Traditionally, women are raised to be nurturing and non-confrontational, that her success is measured by her being a wife and a mother. Socialized as a subordinate of the husband and having the responsibility to keep the family intact, the battered woman may perceive herself having no choice but to put up with the abusive husband.

7. Distorted Perception of Intimate Partner Violence

Childhood experience of intimate partner violence as a witness of violence behaviours between parents or as a victim of child abuse may distort the victim's perception on violence that the violence he / she is suffering from is normal.

8. Suicidal and Homicide Tendency

Having experienced repeated intimate partner violence, the victim may develop a feeling of hopelessness and manifest suicidal tendency. In the extreme case, the victim may seek revenge leading to homicide or family tragedy.

9. Battered Women's Syndrome

People living under prolonged violence may suffer from Post-traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) (i.e. people exposed to a traumatic event will experience fear, stress, depressive mood and horror, etc.). Haunted and stressed by the fear of her safety and the loss of the children's custody if she leaves the abusive relationship, the victim may gradually build up a feeling of helplessness and exhibit syndrome of hyper arousal.

Impacts of Intimate Partner Violence on Children

1. Low Self-esteem

Children raised in an abusive environment without attachment and affection usually have low self-esteem. While the abusive parent's degradation of the other parent and even on the children may distort the children's view of self, the parents' preoccupation by their conflicting relationship may also disable them from giving the children positive regard and support which is important for the development of a sense of self-worth.

2. Post-traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD)

Children living in an environment with intimate partner violence, especially those who have witnessed the violent acts, are at risk of suffering from PTSD. The trauma symptoms include depression, withdrawal (e.g. lack of interest in social activities), fear and sleeping disorder (e.g. nightmare).

3. Confused Feelings towards Parents

Children are not passive message receiver. They will interpret, predict and assess their and the others' risk or role in causing the violence. Depending on their age and relationship with their parents, they will most likely side with the one being battered by the batterer. However, confused by the conflicting messages from their parents and taking the batterer's blame on the victim, some children, especially the older ones, may consider the one being battered also being responsible for the conflict or are angry with both parents for the repeated family violence.

4. Blame for the Violence

Thinking in a more egocentric way and taking the blame from the abusive parent, young children may relate the parental conflict and violence to something they did wrongly, such as their naughtiness or unsatisfactory school performance, and feel guilty for causing the violence.

5. Aggression vs. Submissiveness

In general, children learn from what they see and are told. Sharing the same unequal gender role as their parents that usually men are in charge and women are legitimate target for abuse, boys may learn to be more aggressive and violent while girls more submissive and anxious in interpersonal relationship. This in turn may also increase the risk of intimate partner violence in the next generation.

6. School Problems

Violence at home may disturb and embarrass the children and affect their academic performance. Without proper parental guidance and support for their development of appropriate self-control and social skills, they may have difficulty in complying with school rules. The chance of dropping out from school may also be greater.

7. Anti-social Behaviour (or Maladaptive Coping Behaviour)

Unable to grow up in a safe and supportive environment and without a consistent and positive role-modeling from their parents, most children exposed to intimate partner violence exhibit problem behaviour of one form or the other. Learning from the distorted message of using violence and threats to get what one wants, children may normalize violence as an appropriate and acceptable way to gain control. They may have difficulty in establishing healthy interpersonal relationship but exhibit anti-social behaviour and resort to maladaptive defenses, such as substance abuse.

Characteristics of Batterers

1. Jealousy

Batterer always confuses love with jealousy and control. Saying that his / her jealousy is a sign of love, the batterer accuses his / her partner of spending time with his / her family or friends, and may call the partner frequently or even refuses to let him / her work.

2. Controlling Behaviour

To have the partner totally / solely depend on him / her and for fear of him / her getting support from others, the batterer may manipulate and control the partner's finance, time, social life, and work, and even cut off all resources from the partner.

3. Blame Others for Causing the Violence

The batterer tends to justify and shift the responsibility for his / her violence to others, like work stress, children's naughtiness or even the wrongdoings of the victim. He / She may also try to minimize the seriousness of his / her violence putting all the blame on the victim for annoying and provoking him / her or making fuss of trivial things.

4. Poor in Anger and Stress Management

Most batterers are impulsive and unable to manage their temper properly. Under stress, he / she would easily be enraged and displace his / her anger onto his / her family members by verbal abuse or violent act.

5. Hyper-sensitive to Criticism

Being too self-centred, some batterers are very sensitive to criticism for fear of losing face. He / She is prone to lose his / her temper and get agitated easily when facing challenges or disagreement.

6. Rigid Concept of Gender Role

Preoccupied with the gender stereotyping of men's superiority over women, some male batterers regard themselves as the centre of the family that women have to obey and serve them. To show themselves as the only legitimate parenting authority, they degrade and demean the mothers in front of the children, such as by verbal threat or insulting them as stupid.

7. Use of Force in Sex

Having little concern on the partner's feelings and putting his / her own need first, the batterer may demand sex when the partner is sleeping or even sick, and use force to make the partner comply.

8. Childhood Experience of Intimate Partner Violence

Having exposed to intimate partner violence in childhood may affect the social and psychological development of a child. The distorted view on the use of violence to satisfy one's own needs and the learned gender roles associated with violence and victimization may lead to the vicious cycle of violence in next generation.

9. Lack of Empathy

A batterer's lack of empathy makes him / her difficult to understand the hurt of his / her violence and the sufferings of the victim and the children.

Note 1 : Known case of other unit includes active case of IFSC/MSSU/PO. For MSSU, it includes those cases requiring medical follow-up within 26 weeks at public hospitals / some specialist out-patient clinics where there are MSWs stationed, except community teams. However, MSW would not handle patient's problem that involves statutory duties (except statutory duties arising from Mental Health Ordinance) if patient's residential address is not within the same SWD district where the MSSU is located. Considerations for Referral to Clinical Psychologists
(Specific to Domestic Violence Cases)

I. FOR ADULT VICTIMS

Instruction to caseworker: Below are some common psychological problems of adult victims and/or survivors of domestic violence. Use the suggested questions to find out whether or not they have the following psychopathology. If a client gives positive answers to the questions for the following psychological disorders, the caseworker may consider referring the client to a clinical psychologist for a more thorough assessment and if necessary, for treatment.

A. Posttraumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD)

Symptoms include: recurrent and intrusive recollection of the trauma, flashback episodes, traumatic dreams and nightmares, physiological and psychological distress, avoidance of reminders of the traumatic event, loss of pleasure, psychogenic amnesia, numbing, hyper arousal, disturbed concentration.

- | | Yes | No |
|---|--------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1. Have you ever seen or experienced domestic violence in which your life was actually in danger, or you thought your life was in danger? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 2. People who have experienced domestic violence sometimes have flashbacks where they relive the violent event, and they may even act or feel as though the event is happening again, even though it isn't. Has this happened to you? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 3. Do you try to block out thoughts or feelings related to the domestic violence? Do you avoid talking about it? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 4. Since the violent event or events, have you had problems sleeping? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 5. Do reminders of the domestic violence make you tremble, break out into a sweat, have a racing heart or get you upset and frightened? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 6. Have you been bothered by symptoms in Question A.2-A.5 for more than one month? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |

B. Major Depressive Disorder

Symptoms include: severely depressed mood, loss of interest or pleasure, significant weight loss or weight gain, sleep disturbances, restlessness or being slowed down, loss of energy, excessive guilt, feelings of worthlessness, inability to concentrate, suicidal thoughts or attempt.

	Yes	No
1. Have you been feeling unhappy, down or depressed most of the day, nearly every day?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
2. Have you lost interest in or do you get less pleasure from the things you used to enjoy?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
3. Do you have problems falling asleep, staying asleep, or waking up too early in the morning?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
4. Do you think about things from the past and feel guilty about them?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
5. Sometimes when a person feels down or depressed they might think about dying. Have you been having any thoughts like that?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
6. Do you feel like you are worthless or a failure?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
7. Have you been bothered by symptoms in Question B.1-B.6 for the past two weeks?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>

C. Crisis Cases for which caseworkers need support from clinical psychologists e.g. suicidal, homicidal clients

II. FOR BATTERERS

Treatment service for batterers aims at helping batterers to acknowledge their violence towards their partners, take responsibility for their behaviour, change their behavioural pattern and manage their relationship problems. Suitable clients include those batterers who may require intensive counselling in order to deal with their violent behaviour and other problems.

Motivation is understandably an important consideration in referring batterers for treatment service. For those less motivated clients, caseworkers may solicit the help of clinical psychologists in arranging their assessment and treatment.

III. CHILD AND ADOLESCENT VICTIMS

Researches consistently suggest that witnessing domestic violence affects children psychologically. Some children may have serious adjustment problems or even psychopathology after being exposed to violence at home for a long time. It is important to consider the developmental level of the child during assessment, as age will affect how the symptoms manifest themselves. To facilitate the caseworker to identify the child and adolescent victims who are in need of psychological intervention, some considerations are listed below. Please consider referring the client to a clinical psychologist if there are positive answers to the following questions.

- | | Yes | No |
|---|--------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1. Does the child repetitively play out the violent scene?
/ Does the adolescent feel that the violent event is recurring? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 2. Is the child or adolescent distressed by the intrusive sounds or images which re-enact the trauma? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 3. Does the child or adolescent have nightmares or night terrors? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 4. Does the child or adolescent have any eating problems or somatic complaints like stomach-ache or headache? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 5. Particularly for pre-school child, does the child show regressive behaviors like wanting to be fed or dressed, losing bowel or bladder control frequently? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 6. Is the child anxiously attached to one person most of the time? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 7. Does the child or adolescent space out most of the time? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 8. Does the child or adolescent refuse to go to school or play truancy frequently? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 9. Does the child or adolescent keep himself or herself in isolation, or act out against others? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 10. Does the child or adolescent show restricted range of affect, such as sadness or helplessness most of the time? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 11. Does the child or adolescent have foreshortened future? For example, he or she does not expect to live longer than a few days or months. | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 12. Is the child inattentive to instructions? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 13. Is the child or adolescent very hypervigilant? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 14. Does the child or adolescent have exaggerated startled response? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 15. Does the child or adolescent have difficulty falling asleep? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |

Guidelines on Urgent Applications of Legal Aid by Victims of Intimate Partner Violence

Application for Legal Aid

1. Intimate partners who wish to seek legal service in connection with their matrimonial problems may apply for legal aid. In case of any special urgency, they should consult the Legal Aid Department without delay. (Telephone Hotline : 2537 7677)

Eligibility

2. An intimate partner is eligible for legal aid if he / she satisfies the following conditions :
- (a) Total income and capital assets, after deduction of certain prescribed allowances, are within the limits permitted for legal aid.
 - (b) Reasonable claim to take legal proceedings in law.

Application Procedures

3. An intimate partner who wishes to apply for legal aid must attend either of the following offices in person :

Headquarters

24/F, Queensway Government Offices
66 Queensway
Hong Kong

Kowloon Branch Office

3/F, Mongkok Government Offices
30 Luen Wan Street
Mongkok
Kowloon

and, as far as possible, bring along the following documents:

- (a) Hong Kong Identity Card;
- (b) Marriage Certificate;

- (c) Birth Certificates of the children of the family;
- (d) Any income proof (e.g. tax returns, employer's certificate, salary payment slip, etc);
- (e) All bank passbooks and statements including any fixed deposit receipts;
- (f) All other relevant documents for assessment of both income and capital; and
- (g) The statement taken by the Police from the intimate partner or police report number, etc., if any.

Processing Procedures

4. After the applicant has filled in the application form for legal aid, for intimate partner violence cases, the Legal Aid Department will take immediate action as follows :

- (a) to conduct means test at once;
- (b) to take a brief statement of the material facts; and
- (c) to refer the application to duty officer immediately thereafter who will interview the applicant further, if necessary.

Legal aid will be granted as soon as practicable. In urgent cases, immediate arrangement will be made with the solicitor assigned to handle the case to interview the applicant and, as appropriate, apply for an injunction order.

URGENT APPLICATIONS - What You Need to Know

While everyone involved in court proceedings wants to see his/her case heard by the court as soon as it can, we are here concerned with applications that are so urgent that they are made to a judge without notice to the other party ("the Respondent"). The purpose of the application is to ask the court to grant an "injunction" order. There are limited circumstances under which the court will entertain an urgent application for an "injunction". The followings are some examples:

CHILD ABDUCTION

If there are reasonable grounds for believing that your children are about to be removed from Hong Kong by the Respondent or if they have been taken from you whilst you are the custodian parent without your consent, you can apply for an order to prevent their removal or for their return.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

If the Respondent has physically hurt you or behaved in an abusive manner, whether by words or acts that scared you or made you feel frightened, you may apply for an injunction order to stop the Respondent from using or threatening to use violence against or harass or intimidate you or your children in future. If you have suffered or are likely to suffer injury because of the Respondent's abusive behaviour, the court can attach a "power of arrest" to the injunction which empowers a police officer to arrest and bring the Respondent to court if he/she breaks the order.

Although an injunction order will deter the Respondent from abusing you, in the interest of your safety, the best and quickest means of getting immediate protection is to call the police by dialling 999 if the Respondent behaves violently towards you. You may also consider leaving your home to go to a safe place for a few days by staying with a relative. If you have nowhere to go, you can contact Harmony House at 2522 0434.

OUSTER/RE-ENTRY ORDERS

These are court orders requiring the Respondent to leave or to allow the Applicant and/or the children to return to the matrimonial home. Before making such orders, the court will take into account the conduct of the parties, the impact of the order on the parties and other family members who reside with them, the respective needs, and financial resources of the parties, and all other relevant circumstances of the case.

PREVENTING THE SALE OF PROPERTY

If you have reasonable grounds to believe that the Respondent is about to sell the matrimonial home or other property without your agreement, you may apply to the court to stop him/her from doing so.

PROTECTING FAMILY ASSETS

If you have reasonable grounds to believe that the Respondent may dissipate or dispose of family assets before your claim for ancillary relief is dealt with by the court, you may seek an order freezing a bank account or ordering money to be paid into court so as to keep the family assets intact in the meantime.

URGENT ENQUIRIES

The above are just examples of some of the urgent applications you can make. If you have reasons for making an urgent application, you can attend the Legal Aid Department in person : Headquarters, 24/F., Queensway Government Offices, 66 Queensway, Hong Kong or Kowloon Branch Office, 3/F., Mongkok Government Offices, 30 Luen Wan Street, Mongkok, Kowloon, during office hours. 24-hour hotline is 2537 7677.
